REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

To the School Committee and Citizens of Naples:

Your schools have been maintained since the last annual report with no unusual drawbacks. The cost of maintenance has steadily increased as was anticipated. The days of low-priced teachers have probably passed forever, but we have a right to expect that the higher wages will, in a few years, make available trained teachers of superior ability.

I would urge the citizens of Naples to provide for a thirty-six week school year, as provided in most other towns. You can readily see that four weeks lost each year for the average nine years of elementary education, is equivalent to the loss of one full school year. I have known personally, pupils from Naples who have found high school work too difficult because they were not properly prepared. Thus handicapped, they soon became discouraged and abandoned all efforts to get a higher education. I believe the short school year is partly to blame for this unfortunate condition.

A centralized building of about four rooms, to which all the pupils of the town might be gathered, would be a great asset to the community and is worthy of your serious consideration. Better teachers could be secured, the children properly graded, and at least twice as much instruction given each child as under the present system.

I advise and strongly urge that the village school be divided into two separate schools. The passing of the lower grades from one room to the other cause a continual interruption of work and is a great disadvantage to both teachers and pupils. If money cannot be raised to build a wing on to the present building, the rooms now used should be remodeled to provide for two independent schools.

The balance appearing under the "repair account" will not be available as repair money for next year, as it will be needed to pay for the furniture already ordered for the Lord School. A part of the shipment was delayed because some of the desks were temporarily out of stock.

I thank the Committee for their co-operation, and I hope that as I become better acquainted with the different communities and their needs, I can render them better service.

Respectfully submitted,

GUY M. MONK,

Superintendent.
